Minnesota’s State Capitol Restoration Revealed

Beautiful and poignant is the best way to describe Saturday evening, Aug. 12, 2017, the second of the three-day grand opening of the Minnesota State Capitol. The event was celebrated with a variety of happenings, which drew in a crowd of nearly 50,000. The calm, mild temped, bug-free summer evening invited people from all walks of life to relax on the plush green lawn of the State Capitol. The grandly lit 112-year old “People’s House” served as the perfect backdrop while listening to the sounds of the Duluth-based, indie-rock band, Cloud Cult. Others strolled the Capitol’s surrounding grounds pausing to collect their thoughts at the Minnesota Workers Memorial, the Military Family Tribute or the Peace Officers Memorial. Still others enjoyed tasty delights of the ever present food trucks while others viewed the inner sanctums of the Capitol building itself. Soon all would be enveloped by a blue-sky darkened evening brought to light with a colorful display of fireworks.

The four-year restoration, renovation and repair project cost an estimated $310 million and will preserve the Capitol for another 100 years. As many step back to view its majestic completion in totality, the intricacies of the craftsmanship and the respect paid to the original workmanship and integrity should not go unnoticed.

Tim Miller, president of Advanced Masonry Restoration in St. Paul, describes his company’s scope of work on the project. “We removed, refinished and reset the railings of the balconies, and along the roof line. We reinstalled them with new stainless steel anchors. The workers also repointed 30 percent of the building mortar joints and 100 percent of the upper joints on the roof.”

Other craftwork included repairing stone on all areas of the building, which included removal of bad areas and installing new material that had to match the existing. The steps and upper marble caps were caulked and lead covering was added on all of the upper joints.

“Twin City Tile and Marble Company’s involvement in the restoration project could be compared to book ends on a massive shelf,” says Joe Becker, VP of the stone division. “Our responsibilities began with the architects as we ascended the scaffold together to determine the scope of work for each facade and

Answers to Your Health Care Questions

I was recently asked a series of questions by a concerned member who would like to improve our health care plan and make it more affordable. Below, I show some of the questions and our responses from the Health Fund:

QUESTION: Can we have higher premiums for smokers?
RESPONSE: A tobacco surcharge is a variation in insurance premiums based on a policyholder (or dependent's) tobacco use. Tobacco surcharges are sometimes called tobacco premiums, premium incentives or nonsmoker discounts.

There are arguments both for and against tobacco rating. Those in favor of tobacco rating suggest that without it, costs connected with tobacco-related illness and disease would be spread across the population. This would raise health insurance premiums for everyone, including non-smokers. Some believe that a tobacco surcharge creates a financial incentive for smokers to quit. They also think the surcharge could discourage non-smokers from beginning the habit.

Those arguing against tobacco rating believe that punitive charges do not curtail addictive behavior. Instead, they feel these surcharges disenfranchise the poor. There is concern that if you charge a smoker rates they deem unaffordable, he or she might be tempted to skip buying coverage. In Minnesota, a 50 percent surcharge is permitted under state sanctioned plans.

Some also cite that insurance companies’ ability to raise premiums based on smoking is a way to get around the Affordable Care Act’s (ACA) provision against health status rating. After 2014, insurance companies were no longer able to charge higher premiums based on health risk or status (health status rating/pre-existing conditions). Some argue smoking should not be excluded from this provision.

How do insurance companies know who smokes?

Matters concerning smoking and health insurance generally rely on the honor system. When you apply for health insurance, you may be required to report whether or not you are a smoker. Insurance companies usually ask two questions. 1) Are you a smoker? 2) Have you used tobacco products in the last six months?

The BAC Health Fund does not ask these questions. The Board of Trustees has considered this matter and decided that resources first need to be used to help members quit without coercive measures being taken. The Board believes that the chances of long term behavior change increase with this approach.

QUESTION: Can Premiums be set similar for all members, but have discounts applied for meeting certain conditions: Good BMI, healthy cholesterol levels, etc.

RESPONSE: The ACA placed severe restrictions on what health plan design was able to achieve through these kinds of discounts. Plans are not able to discriminate against individuals based upon pre-existing conditions. However, you can still achieve much of the same effect through “Value-based insurance design”. This approach aims to increase health care quality and decrease costs by using financial incentives to promote cost efficient health care services and consumer choices. Health benefit plans can be designed to reduce barriers to maintaining and improving health. We are now in an intensive review of our program in light of our new resources with HealthPartners. We hope to be able to roll out new initiatives shortly.

QUESTION: Can we implement Data Analytics to curb our spending?

RESPONSE: The Board of Trustees of the health plan remains engaged in intensive data review/analytics. With our move to HealthPartners, we have new capabilities regarding reporting and analysis that have not existed in the past. We now have one full year of experience data in the HealthPartners system, and the Board is anticipating a comprehensive report from HealthPartners at their next meeting. We are also monitoring outside vendors whose programs may be able to bring additional value through analysis. By targeting the conditions that are expensive, or preventable among bricklayers, we can start to intervene earlier in supporting members to have the best health possible.

QUESTION: Other insurance, such as: Car Insurance, Life insurance and Workers’ Compensation all have variable costs. Can’t we adjust our premiums for risk like these programs do?

RESPONSE: Insurance, at its core, is risk sharing. The assessment of what risks are shared, and to what extent, lie at the heart of plan design. Car insurance is based on risk, but only to some extent. Nobody pays for the catastrophic insured events that occur through their own premiums. Life insurance can take into account health status, and that is not permitted by the ACA under health care plan design. Workers’ Compensation gets ratings, but again all substantial risks are part of the shared risk pool. The Board understands the interplay between the use of the “carrot” and the “stick” in health plan design, and they have engaged a team of professionals that is helping the plan achieve the goals of best quality/best price. It is a very tough environment for health care in general. There are challenges on every front. However, our plan is well positioned to achieve great value far into the future.

“Right to Work” is Wrong

The Republican Party has adopted an array of policies aimed at undermining workplace fairness. The party’s platform attacks the use of the Fair Labor Standards Act to protect employees, seeks to end prevailing wages under the Davis Bacon Act, strives to abolish project labor agreements that have improved working conditions across the country, and demands the enactment of a national “Right to Work” law. It sits high on the party’s agenda.

What does “Right to Work” actually mean to union members?

“Right to Work” is based on a falsehood and would encourage freeloading. A union has an obligation to represent the interests of employees who do not join, or who withdraw membership in, the union in a workplace where those employees’ coworkers are members of that union.

Because most union dues go to representational activities, such as handling grievances and collective bargaining, both Federal and State laws recognize that non-union employees must still pay a portion of the union dues paid by union members. Otherwise, those non-union employees would be getting something for nothing.

Nonetheless, employees who choose not to be in the union representing them and their coworkers often still end up being freeloaders to a certain extent. They receive all of the benefits of union representation while paying substantially less than their union coworkers for the same benefits. On a large scale, this would not be sustainable for obvious reasons.

“Right to Work” results in decreased safety, less employment opportunities, and less workplace democracy. Besides creating basic unfairness, data from various trustworthy sources have uncovered alarming facts: “Right to Work” states experience a larger number of workplace injuries and deaths, fewer employees with health care, less employment opportunity, and greater wage gap between race and gender differentiations.

The law ranks among the considerations for companies in deciding where to locate.

“Right to Work” should be understood for what it is – a corporate giveaway contrary to the interests of the 99 percent.

The Great Outdoors Builds Unity Among Members

The sixth annual BAC ATV ride was held on July 15 in the Paul Bunyan State Forest in Minnesota. Twenty-two participants on 13 machines covered 25 miles of scenic trails throughout the great outdoors. Local members along with members from Milaca, Ogilvie, Swanville and Pine City enjoyed the sights, sounds and smells of the north woods.

We started and returned to our base camp at the Stomping Grounds Campground Bar and Grill, which once again provided great accommodations.

This was the second year of having a potluck/fish fry back at the campgrounds at 6 pm for fellowship.

Golf Winners

Congratulations to the winners of the 2017 BAC Golf Tournament at Pheasant Acres in Rogers, MN, on Saturday, July 29.

Once again, all the participants at the BAC Metro Golf outing at Pheasant Acres had a wonderful time. This year’s winners, with an incredible score of 59 (13 under par), was the group from SiebenCarey. Pictured are Robert Brabbit, Jim Carey and Mark Olive. Not pictured is Ian Carey. The team gratefully donated their first-place winnings to the Injured Apprentice fund. The SiebenCarey group has supported the BAC Golf outings for years by purchasing the golf shirts for all participants. We thank them for their support.

Second place was the group of Mark Borowicz, Nate Franko, Ken Franko and Dan Babcock with a score of 60 (12 under par). This team also donated their winnings back to the Injured Apprentice Fund. Coordinators Jayson Moore and John Slama, and Training Center Director Jody Paulson ran the putting contest on the practice green and raised an additional $570 for the Injured Apprentice Fund. We thank them for their time and thank everyone for their support of this cause. BAC Local 1 will also be making a contribution to this fund. Prizes for the putting contest were donated. Local 1 would like to thank all of our vendors, employers and friends that donated to make this year’s event a huge success.

ended with our master stone carvers leaving their unique artistic imprints throughout the worked stone.”

Although his workers did not install the actual stone, they were responsible for all other aspects of the stone: budgets, pricing and schedule; selection of fabricators; field measure and shop tickets; creation of models; stone procurement and quality control; and master carving and blending.

For many BAC members, the project was a milestone in their career.

Don Schoenborn, a career BAC PCC, retired near the end of the project. “He was the foreman and it was through his ingenuity, leadership and experience that we were able to solve the many challenges of the project,” says Miller. “Sarah Arkeh is a journeyman bricklayer who has an amazing talent for color and repairing stone.” Others Miller would like to recognize are: Ken Stachowski, Steve England, Todd Lindberg, Tyler Lundberg, Craig Lundberg, Levi Post to name a very few.

Steve McIntosh “learned on the fly”, says Becker, “and our master carvers who included Mark Wickstrom made us honored to be working on this historic structure – the original stones. We had a group of very competent people.”

“What an amazing opportunity for building trades members to showcase the work they do every day, not only for them and their families, but for the people of the great State of Minnesota to marvel at what they have accomplished,” says Don Mullin, executive secretary, Saint Paul Building & Construction Trades Council. “The hard work and dedication of our trades people will ensure that future generations of Minnesotans will continue to enjoy the stunning architecture of this building and the work that is done within its walls will continue to bring progress to our great state.”

“A project that we can all be proud of for ages. A work that will last lifetimes,” says Miller and Becker.

Perhaps these are the same sentiments of those workers who carved their names on the stone in 1905.
IMI CORNER

IMI Strategies Working for You

IMI works on behalf of members of BAC Local 1 MN/ND by providing masonry education and expertise to the design and construction communities. Mark Swanson, IMI director, uses his architectural background to give educational seminars and serve as a project consultant to boost the number of masonry work opportunities available to BAC members.

Recent IMI Seminars

Swanson has been busy traveling around Minnesota meeting with architectural and engineering firms. In July, he travelled to Moorhead, MN, to talk with Michael J. Burns Architects about movement joints. He’s busy around the metro area as well, visiting architectural firms such as Leo A Daly and MSR Design in Minneapolis, TKDA in St. Paul, and Klein McCarthy Architects in St. Louis Park.

Swanson works with structural engineers Sam Rubenzer and Mike Manor of Forse Consulting, for structural masonry seminars. Recent seminars include Connections to Masonry at BKBM Engineering. These outreach efforts broaden the impact of IMI by targeting a variety of structural firms, encouraging each to use masonry structurally and efficiently in their projects.

New Program: Masonry Wednesdays

IMI Minnesota recently launched Masonry Wednesdays, a seminar series for architects, engineers, construction managers, owners, general contractors, and BAC signatory contractors. Join us on the third Wednesday of each month for a free, one-hour seminar at the BAC Training Center in New Hope, MN. Seminar topics will include masonry products, new masonry construction techniques, and more. IMI Minnesota will invite a variety of speakers to present each month.

View upcoming seminars and register to attend at www.imiweb.org. The events are free, but registration is required. Lunch will be provided.

Masonry Wednesdays will raise awareness and knowledge around masonry and masonry products in an effort to help increase union masonry work hours.

BIM for Masonry

Swanson is on the executive committee for Building Information Modeling for Masonry which recently announced two new tools to help designers and contractors work more efficiently with BIM software. The Masonry Unit Database allows the download of individual generic masonry units into a variety of software platforms. This will aid in the creation of virtual mockups and unit layouts. 3DiQ is a masonry modeling plugin for Autodesk Revit that provides modelers with enhanced masonry modularity tools. Visit bimformasonry.org to access more information about these resources.

Announcing the Joan B. Calambokidis (JBC) Award for Innovation in Masonry

Swanson has been assisting IMI President Caryn Halifax in launching the Joan B. Calambokidis Innovation in Masonry Competition. Open to architects, engineers, students, and firms, competitors are encouraged to rethink the potential of masonry by imagining new applications for the future. Entrants will design a building, building element, or other concept that embodies the innovative potential of masonry. The competition opens in September with entries accepted through November 2017. Visit www.imiweb.org in September for more information, including prizes and how to enter.

Competitions like this encourage architects, engineers, firms, contractors, and students to consider masonry applications in designing and building structures. As IMI continues to strive for greater adoption of masonry design, our members are always a priority. Increasing union hours and opportunities for masonry construction drives all that we do.

Training Programs for You

Swanson continually advocates for the design and construction community to use skilled, highly trained union labor. To learn more about training programs available to BAC members, visit www.IMTEF.org and www.bactraining.org. Follow IMI Minnesota on Facebook to stay up-to-date on local news and events.

Mark Swanson can be reached at mswanson@imiweb.org, 612-332-2214 or on his cell at 612-840-8695. To learn more about the International Masonry Institute, visit www.imiweb.org.

GOVERNMENT

POLITICS – Our Issues

By Bill McCarthy, MN AFL-CIO President

Working Minnesotans Face a Critical Choice Next Year

In a little more than a year, Minnesota voters will return to the polls. With Governor Dayton’s decision to not run for reelection, we have the important task of electing a new Governor.

Governor Dayton has stood with Minnesota’s Labor movement since day one. During the last eight years, we worked with him to build a better Minnesota. Working together, we balanced the state’s budget by making taxes fairer, we gave every Minnesota child access to all-day kindergarten, invested billions in improving our state’s infrastructure and creating thousands of good-paying union construction jobs.

However, all that success could be wiped away in a single election. I know that every election cycle you hear people say, “This is the most important election of our lifetime.” I have tried to think of an election that has been more important, but I can’t think of a more important one in my lifetime than the challenge our Labor movement faces in 2018.

In 2018, working Minnesotans will have a clear choice. We can go down the reckless path that states like Wisconsin have traveled; an anti-union Governor who signed a “Right to Work” bill, ended Project Labor Agreements, and decimated the state’s Labor movement.

Wisconsin’s present doesn’t have to be Minnesota’s future. We can rise to the challenge next year by electing a Governor who shares our values and who will continue to invest in the people who build our state. A Governor who knows that working people deserve a fair return on the work they do and will protect our freedom to organize.

We will only elect a Labor-friendly Governor if our state’s entire Labor movement goes all in on the Labor 2018 political program. While we might be a year away, it’s never too early to begin work. Start talking with your friends, family, and fellow workers on the job site about why the 2018 election is so important.

Together, we can win and keep building a better Minnesota for all working people.
